8 Places to Spend Thanksgiving

You'll be grateful you don't have to cook, that's for sure.

BY LEENA KIM — NOV 3, 2021

Thanksgiving is traditionally a time for gatherings at home. You spend the day cooking the turkey, baking the pies, and watching football, then convene around the dining table with family and friends to express gratitude by way of overindulgence. But why not let someone else do all the work for a change? Traveling for Thanksgiving doesn't necessarily mean giving up all of its treasured traditions. You can still have the all-American feast, play flag football, and do the turkey trot, but from a luxurious destination, be it snowy Park City or tropical Maldives. Here are 8 of our favorite Thanksgiving weekend escapes.

Dromoland Castle, Ireland

DROMOLAND CASTLE

Give your Thanksgiving celebrations a little Irish twist this year and hop across the Atlantic to the sprawling and majestic Dromoland Castle in breathtakingly scenic County Clare. With incredible fall foliage, proximity to the famous Cliffs of Moher, and 450 acres of property grounds to explore, there will be much to do. And for Thanksgiving weekend, the hotel has crafted an itinerary that includes falconry, holiday wreath-making, calligraphy classes to ace your Christmas card game this year, shopping excursions, and, of course, a traditional family-style feast on Turkey Day.
